

Wednesday Morning

Feb 3. 1847.

Dear Caroline

I went yesterday to Miss Barnes & Harnden & arranged with them about the your bonnet. I thought it not best to wait till you could send him as you would not know the exact time so I arranged that he should call for the bonnet this forenoon, & I shall carry my letter & Deborah's pattern up to Barnes.
Mrs Folger left yesterday morning for Mr. Colby.
I was out when she left. I called yesterday at Twicken & paid E's bill $17. for her taking off $3. and at Henrietta's where I dined & at the Post Office & 21. I had a good dinner & warm welcome at the Sergents. No news there. In the afternoon the Board Meeting was held & it was agreed that Mr May & J. W. B. should be engaged if possible. Addison Davis was voted down, mainly by the Dr's & Phillips's open attack's & my more covert ones. Wendell was for him.
$700 was pledged to the Agency fund at the Annual Meeting which was I think pretty well.
Folger who was at the Board Meeting seemed in a flurry that we should make some attack on the City Gov't, but Garrison was very easily inclined to the opinion that I expressed, that it would not be best to connect the attack with the closing of the meeting. Francis J. was not present, but Edmund Jackson spoke grining up & said that he should prepare personally something for Publication in the Liberator's printing path ^{case} all & how about the behaviour of the City authorities. So this we all had nothing to say & the Brewer were. I don't care a pin what the Jacksons say on their own responsibility. If it be true, well good, & if not they can be contradicted.

And Mary did not come in town last night as I had expected. I shall look for her today. Charles came from Plymouth last night & said he. I believe he goes to West Roxbury the last of the week. Old Mr Snell is dead, Lydia's father. He has taught writing in the Latin school more than 60 yrs. - I fancy I shall go to Weymouth to day. Have all those letters that you brought down safe, for whenever comes to the Fair to take.

Yrs ever Henry
